Merced is home to the newest campus of the University of California system. UC Merced will open in the fall of 2005 with a curriculum focused on research, engineering and the environment. UC Merced brings the University of California's historic commitment to excellence in teaching, research, and public service to the state's great San Joaquin Valley. UC Merced will offer a broad range of undergraduate and graduate programs and is projected to grow to a 25,000 student enrollment in full build-out by approximately the year 2030. UC Merced will

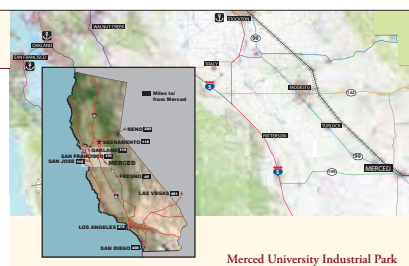

The Merced Community

Merced County is a community located in the heart of Central California with a population of approximately 210,000 residents. The City of Merced is the seat of the County and is one of the fastest growing cities in the Central Valley. Merced's economy has been primarily agricultural based, but it continues to diversify in the areas of food processing, retail and light manufacturing.

The Merced community is home to a plentiful labor force made up of diverse skill sets. Local businesses have a growing labor pool to draw from and the competitive wage rates of the Merced community are attractive to new and expanding employers.
